

SWEENEY SUSPENDS CAMPAIGN, REMAINS COMMITTED TO ALASKA

I decided to run for Congress because I wanted to fight for the people and communities I love. The last few months I've enjoyed traveling the state listening to Alaskans and hearing about the opportunities and challenges we face. It has only reinforced my passion to do whatever I can to make Alaska an even better place to call home.

That said, I have decided to end my campaign for Congress and will file the necessary paperwork to withdraw from the race. Looking at the outcome of the Regular Primary election, I don't see a path to victory, nor to raise the resources needed to be successful this November.

I want to thank my dedicated volunteers and supporters for all they have done. We ran a campaign focused on the issues, not partisan rhetoric. I'm proud of our team and what we accomplished together.

This race is vitally important to Alaska's future. We must ensure the best representation possible is in place as Alaska's only voice in the House of Representatives. I look forward to working with a true Alaskan willing to carry forward the legacy of Don Young while serving in Congress. This state is worth fighting for and I am committed to making it a better place now and into the future.
