THE COST OF INHERITANCE: AN AMERICA REFRAMED SPECIAL EXPLORES THE CURRENT-DAY PURSUIT OF REPARATIONS FOR AFRICAN AMERICANS

Tune in Monday, January 8, at 9 p.m. on Alaska Public Media TV.

This special one-hour documentary presents a nuanced view of the key issues, scope, and rationale of the reparations debate from a number of perspectives. The film documents communities seeking to make amends for economic inequalities stemming from historic racial injustice with the aim to launch conversations about specific actions that aspire to close the racial wealth gap in America. Participants in the film address the cumulative impact of racial discrimination and a lack of opportunities firmly rooted in the system of enslavement.

The film follows the long journey of individuals and communities seeking to make reparations a reality on the individual, local, and national levels. Expertly crafted by Emmy® nominated director Yoruba Richen, The Cost of Inheritance: An America Reframed Special examines how reparations are defined and for whom they are sought. Personal stories, expert interviews, and rich archival materials weave a narrative around the status of strategies for reparations, restitution, and restoration today. The history of the disparate trajectory of lives marginalized by slavery and its aftermath—in the form of Reconstruction and Jim Crow laws—unfolds through archival footage and insights from a diverse roster of interviews.

NEW DOCUMENTARY CHRONICLES THE RISE AND FALL OF THE PRO-NAZI GERMAN AMERICAN BUND

Tune in on Tuesday, January 23, at 8 p.m. on Alaska Public Media TV.

In February 1939, more than 20,000 Americans filled Madison Square Garden for an event billed as a “Pro-American Rally.” Images of George Washington hung next to swastikas and speakers railed against the “Jewish controlled media” and called for a return to a racially “pure” America. The keynote speaker was Fritz Kuhn, head of the German American Bund. Nazi Town, USA tells the largely unknown story of the Bund, which had scores of chapters in suburbs and big cities across the country and represented what many believe was a real threat of fascist subversion in the United States.

The Bund held joint rallies with the Ku Klux Klan and ran dozens of summer camps for children centered around Nazi ideology and imagery. Its melding of patriotic values with virulent anti-Semitism raises thorny issues that we continue to wrestle with today. Kuhn imagined that America would be a kind of star in a constellation of pro-Nazi governments around the world, and his leadership climaxed with the massive 1939 rally in Madison Square Garden.

Those Bund supporters gathered only to be opposed by tens of thousands of counter-protesters outside. By the time of the massive 1939 rally, grassroots resistance to the Bund was already gaining steam, including actions organized by Jewish mobsters and investigations by intrepid journalists who infiltrated the Bund to expose its inner workings and call out American fascism. Soon after the Madison Square Garden rally, Fritz Kuhn was jailed on embezzlement charges and ultimately deported as an unregistered foreign agent. Many Americans, however, continued to support right wing organizations like the Bund and isolationist groups like Lindbergh’s “America First” right up to the United States’ entry in World War II, when the Bund finally collapsed. Its ugly history was largely forgotten and few ever reckoned with the appeal that fascist ideas had held to many Americans during the tumultuous 1930s.

Director Peter Yost shared, “Nazi Town, USA traces the rise and fall of the German American Bund and the threat posed by domestic fascism in the 1930s. There’s a resonance in the film with today’s fractured times and I hope the story can serve as a reminder of both the fragility—and resilience—of American democracy.”
